WATER DISCOLORATION AND CLOUDINESS

Discoloration Due to "Cloudy" Water

During the winter months, water that comes out of your tap can sometimes appear to be "cloudy." This discoloration is usually caused by harmless air bubbles because cold water simply holds more air than warm water. Also, water out of a faucet holds more air since it is under pressure. If you let the water settle for a few minutes, the air bubbles will no longer be visible.

WATER CONSERVATION

Practices to Conserve Water

- Turn off the faucet while brushing your teeth to save 8 gallons per day.
- Turn off the faucet while lathering soap, shaving and when washing your hands
- Turn off the faucet while washing dishes
- Take a shorter shower to save between two and five gallons of water each minute
- Run dishwashers and washing machines less often
- Sweep your sidewalk, steps, and driveway instead of hosing off those areas
- Wait to water your plants or water in the morning or early evening to reduce water lost to evaporation
- When mowing your lawn, set the blades 2-3 inches high. Longer grass shades the soil, improving moisture retention.
- Collect rainwater in a barrel or bucket to use in your garden or on your lawn
- Visit commercial car washes that recycle water

Appliances

- Using an efficient dishwasher instead of washing dishes by hand and save 5,000 gallons of water each year
- Switching to an efficient clothes washer can save 2,000 gallons of water every year
- Replacing an older toilet with an efficient model can save between 4,000 and 10,000 gallons of water a year
